The World Diabetic Day was celebrated on 14th November, 2024. The event was organized by the Department of Medical Surgical Nursing and B.Sc. Nursing Semester-III Students B.V.D.U., College of Nursing. The event was organized at the Bharati Hospital and Research Centre on the second floor. The event was in accordance with the theme given by WHO. "DIABETES AND WELL-BEING," for the year 2024.

The celebration for the day started at 10 am. Number of participants were 104. The faculty of Department of Medical Surgical Nursing initiated the program. The students planned for health education and activities for the patient's relatives. These included information on Definition of Diabetes Mellitus, Causes, Signs & Symptoms, Diagnostic Tests, Diet for Diabetic Mellitus, Preventive Measures and Complications. The topics were divided among the students. Relevant posters were made to disperse the information effectively. The health education session was conducted in the local language for easy understanding of the information recipients.

After the health education a discussion session was conducted to clarify the doubts and queries of the patient relatives. The relatives took an active part in the discussion and the students received positive response from them.

Later a photo session was conducted for the faculty, students and the listeners.

Thanks to Medical Surgical Nursing Department for guiding, encouraging and supporting the students. It was a successful event.
