NBA CERTIFICATES

Preamble

Accreditation plays a vital role in ensuring and enhancing quality within recognized educational institutions, where programs undergo thorough evaluation to meet and exceed the norms and standards established by regulatory bodies. It signifies recognition that a program or institution complies with specific standards.

The National Board of Accreditation (NBA) aims to promote and acknowledge excellence in technical education across colleges and universities, spanning undergraduate and postgraduate levels. Accreditation benefits institutions, students, employers, and the broader public by offering external validation of quality and encouraging continuous improvement efforts. Accreditation serves various essential purposes:

- Offering support and guidance to technical institutions in maintaining and improving their educational quality.
- Instilling confidence in the quality of education among stakeholders, including students.
- Validating an institution's reputable status to government bodies and other interested parties.
- Allowing institutions to publicly declare their voluntary acceptance of independent inspection and compliance with requirements for ensuring quality education.

The impact of accreditation goes beyond quality assurance to encompass several significant outcomes:

- Encouraging quality improvement initiatives within institutions.
- Enhancing both the quality and quantity of student enrollment.
- Facilitating access to necessary funding for institutions.
- Improving graduates' employability.
- Facilitating international recognition of degrees and promoting graduates' and professionals' mobility.
- Encouraging faculty's active involvement in academic and institutional activities.
- Cultivating a robust academic environment and contributing to the country's social and economic development by producing high-quality technical professionals.

Accreditation holds significant benefits and importance for education stakeholders. Accredited institutions and programs offer the highest quality education, instilling confidence and enhancing graduates' job prospects. Moreover, accreditation helps institutions identify areas for improvement, fostering a commitment to excellence and ongoing quality enhancement.

The criteria for accreditation have evolved towards outcomes-based education, focusing on achieving desirable outcomes in terms of knowledge, skills, attitudes, and behavior. NBA's accreditation methodology transitioned towards outcomes-based assessment in 2009, recognizing that educational quality should be evaluated based on outcomes rather than inputs alone.

At BVDU, various departments of the Engineering College in Pune and PCP undergo regular accreditation by NBA, as outlined in the table below.

Year	College	Validity Period
